Move to Carry Out Findings of Survey

Boys' Welfare Council Names Committee to Favor Recommendations Before Board of Education—Cost Not to Exceed $20,000 Annually—Cameron Beck Brings Some More Boy Inspiration.

The cost of the vocational education program recommended for Kingston would be about $20,000 a year.

This was the main fact brought out at the annual meeting of the Boys' Welfare Council at the high school Friday evening at which the report of the industrial survey just completed here was read by Oakley Furney, one of the State Department of Education specialists who conducted it. But, said Mr. Furney in commenting on the report, the plan should not be thought of in terms of "cost, cost, cost" but "pay, pay, pay," having reference to the large dividends that are paid on what in reality is an investment. Cameron Beck, who spoke later, supported Mr. Furney's statement.

About 700 persons, nearly two-thirds of whom were men, were present.

The Rev. Dr. Frank B. Seeley, president of the council, presided and began with a brief review of the council's plan for the year just ended and the extent to which it had been carried out. The vocational education work had largely occupied the council's time, but among other tangible results had been a notable growth in religious education. Many local churches now have courses in Bible study approved by the Board of Education and the regents but it was to be regretted that the interest was confined principally to the high school students. In recreational work a comprehensive program has been mapped out which is believed to be acceptable, practical and likely to be largely realized. The Chamber of Commerce, Rotary and Kiwanis, which came in later, together with the women's clubs and the churches, were deserving of much credit for their cooperative efforts in this direction.

As a nominating committee to choose directors for the ensuing year Dr. Seeley named Harry Gerhardt, Mrs. George F. Rice and Everett Fessenden. Two directors each have already been selected from Rotary, Kiwanis and the Chamber of Commerce and this committee will choose five more.

Dr. Seeley then introduced Mr. Furney who read the report of the industrial survey, a synopsis of which was printed in Friday's Freeman.

In commenting on it he made the following points:

It is the duty of the state to provide a minimum of education for every child, whether in the remote Adirondacks or in Times Square.

In addition each locality is bound to provide such additional opportunities as the needs of the community demand.

To find these needs was the purpose of survey here—to make it unnecessary for boys and girls to go elsewhere in search of more suitable education or employment.

We have gotten past the point where arguments in favor of vocational training are necessary. It is now an accomplished fact upon which the state spends hundreds of thousands of dollars annually.

This city will never make a better investment than in vocational education because it pays large dividends.

Vocational education is a matter solely for the community to decide upon. There is no pressure or compulsion from the state.

Finally, he said that the report recommendations were the result of long experience on the part of those who made the survey and were worth considering.

Dr. Seeley asked for and Frank Fowley presented a resolution indorsing "the program in general" and asking "the president to appoint a committee of seven to appear before the board of education and ask the adoption of such of this program as is deemed feasible and advisable." It was seconded by P. H. Carey and carried and a committee composed of Chief of Police Wood, E. E. Fessenden, Arthur Burns, Dr. Mark O'Meara, Judge Joseph M. Fowler, M. R. Coutant and E. W. Kearney was named.

Cameron Beck, personnel manager for the New York Stock Exchange, was presented and gave one of his inimitable boy talks which are an inspiration to his youthful hearers and a satisfaction to their parents. He spoke from the same platform a month ago and his experiences and observations since then were largely the subject of his talk. He expressed alarm over the "fast living" of the youth of the present time and pleaded for a return to the old fashioned conceptions of right and wrong and a closer supervision by the parents.

Men in the best positions to know have detected recently something wrong in American life. Perhaps it is due to the growing pursuit of money and luxury to the neglect of long established ideals of business, society and home life.

The world hungers for leaders and leaders are not produced by such conditions, so far removed from those which produced Abraham Lincoln and a long list of the men he named who direct the country's destinies.

Seven o'clock p. m., he quoted Victor Murdock, is the fateful hour in a young man's life. Then it is he turns either to the thriftless pursuit of pleasure often leading to dissipation or embraces the golden opportunities of improving and preparing himself for the chance at success that will eventually come.

No organization can survive unless it has new and young men of ability fused into it. And this applies to the greatest organization—the nation.

The thing that brought him here tonight was his vital concern for the leadership of tomorrow.

Speaking on punctuality, he said that if he were pastor of a Kingston church and the service was due to begin at 11 o'clock he would have the sexton refuse admittance to those who came after that hour.

He strongly approved the educational step proposed here and said it was an obligation of business men to guide and counsel the boys and give them every assistance possible. He would ten times rather see his own son a good machinist, provided he liked the work, than a poor broker or "half baked" clerk, and there were thousands of such.

Perseverance was a vital element to success and coupled with it should be a passion for righteousness.

The high school orchestra, under Mr. Spaulding, entertained previous to the speaking.

LOWELL CLUB AT "TB" HOSPITAL

The Lowell Club arranged and gave an entertainment at the Tuberculosis Hospital for the benefit of the patients Thursday evening. The following program was given immensely to the delight of the always appreciative audience, and encores to all numbers were the order of the evening:

Mandolin Trio, Messrs. Osgood, Beehler and Smith.
Vocal Solo, Harold Brigham.
"A Stunt," umbrella dance in costume, Mrs. Alfred Van Buren.
Reading, Mrs. Harry P. Van Wagenen.
Banjo Solo, by special request of patients, Mr. Osgood.
Mandolin Trio, Messrs. Osgood, Beehler and Smith.
Monologue, Mr. Osgood.
Banjo and Piano Selection, again by request, Mr. Osgood and Mrs. A. H. Van Buren.

Throughout the evening Mrs. Van Buren acted as accompanist.

After this much of the program there came a surprise. Miss Gappe, the superintendent nurse, announced that everyone had greatly enjoyed the pleasant evening their friends had given them, and as a bit of appreciation they would like to return the compliment in a little way. The one who had thought of this was little Dorothy Coddington, who would recite "Grandma's Specs." Dorothy did no nicely she was given an encore and then to the surprise of even Miss Gappe, returned and—since it was almost Washington's birthday, a national holiday—Dorothy saluted the flag which quite took down the house. Next came Master Gilbert Dohnken, who also recited cleverly and responded with an encore, all a very happy feature of a truly delightful evening.

The members of the Lowell Club had provided ice cream and home made cake in abundance and that, too, was hugely enjoyed. The entertainers took away with them the hearty thanks of all at the hospital.

THIS COW A MODEL OF EFFICIENCY FOR OTHERS.

A cow owned by Perez R. Steele, the village milk dealer of Cairo, may furnish Ulster county cattle owners with an idea which they can put to practical application. The Cairo cow helps to lighten Mr. Steele's labors as much as a cow can. She happens to stand in a stable near a root cutter. Each day Mr. Steele brings a quantity of vegetables from the house and empties them in the cutter, where he leaves them while he performs sundry chores before feeding the animals. While he is thus engaged, the intelligent cow pokes her nose between the spokes of the wheel of the cutter and turns it until she has ground enough feed for herself and several other cows. By that time Mr. Steele has finished his chores and grinds the rest of the feed himself. This is the first cow in this part of the state which has been taught to help her owner in grinding her own feed, but with a little patience and practice other owners ought to be able to show results as good if not better.

A North Street Dance.

The second of the series of dances in St. Marie Hall, 200 North street, will be held this evening. The music will be furnished by the Harmony Kings orchestra. There will be a prize fox trot.

DELEGATES TO CONFERENCE

RIVER TRAVEL TO START TUESDAY

After a suspension of several weeks navigation between Newburgh and New York will be resumed next Tuesday when the steamer Poughkeepsie of the Central Hudson Line will make the first trip of the season to New York from Newburgh. The hour for starting has not been set definitely.

The Central Hudson Line will begin to receive freight in Newburgh Monday. There is considerable ice yet in the river between Newburgh and Stony Point, but it is not such that the company anticipates any serious trouble with it.

Off Kingston Point the ice is reported to be over a foot thick and still safe to cross with automobiles and vehicles. As soon as the ice becomes unsafe it is expected that the ferry Transport will resume trips between Rondout and Rhinecliff.

No date has been fixed as yet for the opening of navigation between Kingston and down river points.

HEALTH PICTURES AND NURSE CLASS

Close onto 600 people saw the free exhibition of health movies at the Kingston Opera House on Friday afternoon. Through the generosity of Mr. Gildersleeve, the films sent from the State Department of Health for the benefit of the big nursing class were shown to the class and their friends, free of admission charge. All of the three pictures were in the form of a story and therefore the human interest was much greater than it otherwise would have been.

The first picture, "The Priceless Gift," was on the care of children, showing the home care of one baby growing up through boyhood to young manhood, and also the handicap where another baby boy "just came up." It was realistic and very impressive.

The second picture was entitled, "One Scar or Many," and showed all the processes of making vaccine; its application according to the most approved methods of today, leaving scarcely the one scar, and showing as the last picture the smiling face of a young girl who would have been pretty if not so horribly pock-marked, yet who was bright looking in spite of the disfigurement.

The last picture, "Reward of Courage," was an impressive story of the absolute need of early treatment of cancer, with its then practically sure cure, the danger of applying quack nostrums instead, and other valuable information relative to cancer. The pictures were all interesting, informing and appealing.

Announcement was made that the next meeting of the free nursing class would be, not next Monday night but next Wednesday night at 7:30 at the high school. The program will include a talk on "Good Inspection and Care," by Dr. Clarke of the Board of Health, and a talk on nutritious foods, with special attention to foods for invalids, by Miss Davis of the Home Economics Department of the Kingston High School.

Those who have not yet had the opportunity to receive instruction in bed-making will have their chance at this phase of practical nursing.

HOW MANY LOADS OF HAY DID VOGEL GET?

That Is Question Judge Schirick Is To Decide.

Recently Ward S. Washburn, who has a farm in Saugerties, sold some hay to Abe Vogel of this city, which was delivered by Emerson Powell in one of his big auto trucks. A dispute arose over the number of loads Washburn had delivered to Vogel. Washburn claimed he had delivered seven loads, and Vogel claimed he received but six.

As a result Washburn through his attorney, Surrogate Kaufman, brought suit in city court here to recover $259.55 for the seven loads. The case came up for trial Friday before City Judge Harry E. Schirick.

Mr. Vogel was represented by Judge W. D. Brinnier, Jr. It developed that Vogel was willing to pay for the six loads before suit was bought. His certified check for $222.87 was filed with the court.

Mr. Washburn and one of his employes who helped to load the hay into the Powell truck testified they had loaded seven loads, but Mr. Powell and his employes claimed they had received but six loads which they delivered to Vogel.

At the close of the testimony Judge Schirick reserved decision.

There is a charge of grand larceny against Smith and if the girl is 16 as claimed by the Hudson police a graver charge will be lodged against the man. The girl's mother has a store at No. 2 Warren street, Hudson. The pair spent the night at the county jail, and today were taken to Hudson by the Hudson authorities.

CHILDREN'S COURT BILL DRAFTED

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, Feb. 25.—The bill embodying Governor Miller's recommendation for children's courts to carry out by statute a constitutional amendment voted at the last general election has been completed, according to an announcement last night by Senator Charles W. Walton of Ulster, who said he would introduce the measure next week.

The bill is designed to establish a children's part in county courts except in communities where children's courts are already in existence, Senator Walton said. In the latter case they would be raised from inferior courts to courts of record, thus giving them judisdiction over the adoption of children.

Another bill carrying out the governor's recommendations has not been finally decided on, Senator Walton said. The only provision agreed upon, he said, is one extending the authority of child welfare boards to dependent children and another to extend authority over children adjudicated by the courts as neglected children. Other work remaining to be completed along the same lines includes the state's child welfare commission and humane societies. The complete draft of the bill probably will be ready for introduction next week, Senator Walton said.

SECOND MINSTREL SHOW TURNED 'EM AWAY

K. of C. Funny Men Went Big Again at St. Mary's.

At St. Mary's School Hall Friday evening, the minstrel entertainment for the building fund for the Benedictine Hospital given by the Knights of Columbus Dramatic Society was a huge success, and scored a bigger hit than the preceding night.

The large hall was filled long before the entertainment was to start and a large number were deprived of seeing the show as the hall was crowded and admittance was impossible.

Every member did his part well and the large audience was very appreciative. Joe Murray acted as an end man and made a decided hit with his witty remarks.

Much credit is due David Long, Thomas F. Coughlin and Harry Maisenholder the directors and the interlocutor. Dancing followed the entertainment by Balfe's orchestra.

Creek Ferry Payment Bill is in Again

Senator Walton's New Measure Would Make It Possible for Owners of Skillypot to Collect Consequential Damages Incurred Through Building of New Bridge—County Would Have To Pay Such Part as Commissioners Decided Upon.

Senator Walton has introduced in the State Senate a bill to amend the state highway law in relation to the determination of damages sustained by reason of the construction of a state highway, providing for the payment of consequential damages to owners of lands taken for public improvement if such lands taken and owners thereof shall, at the same time, have and possess any right, privilege or franchise or business for the transportation by water of passengers, vehicles or freight, and the value of the same shall be impaired, injured or destroyed by the execution of such state highway plans, the damages to be determined by commissioners and paid by the state of New York and the county within which the lands are located.

The effect of the bill if it becomes a law is to allow payment of damages to the owners of the Sleightsburgh ferry which they may have sustained by reason of the construction of the new Rondout Creek Bridge.

The bill of Senator Walton, which bears the numbers 385, 505, Int. No. 367, was introduced on January 30, was read twice and ordered printed and when printed to be committed to the committee on finance committee discharged, said bill amended, ordered reprinted as amended, and when reprinted to be recommitted to said committee.

It provides that Section 152 of Chapter 30 of the laws of nineteen hundred and nine, constituting chapter twenty-five of the consolidated laws, is amended, and also section 153 of the same law.

Section 152 relates to the "Duties of Commissioners," (commissioners appointed to appraise lands taken by condemnation), and adds to the existing section the following provisions:

"If any such lands shall be taken as part of any plan for any public improvement and the owner or owners thereof shall, at any time, have and possess and right, privilege or franchise or business for the transportation by water of passengers, vehicles or freight, or either or all of them, and the value of the same by the execution of any such plan shall be impaired, injured or destroyed, such owner or owners because thereof shall have claim against the state of New York and the county within which the lands are located for damages, not only for the land taken, but for any injury, direct or consequential, which such owners, or any or either of them, may sustain."

The amendment to section 152 further provides that "Said commissioners, in their report, also may determine any and all damages which may be sustained by any owner or owners for the injury, impairment or destruction of any such right, privilege, franchise or business, and in such report shall assess, allow and state such damages against the state of New York and the county in which such lands, rights, privileges, franchises and business are located in such proportion as to such commissioners shall seem equitable and just."

The amendment to section 153 adds the word "state" and connecting words so as to make the payment of commissioners' awards by state and county treasurers, and making such charges state and county charges, to be apportioned by the commissioners.

The present highway law does not provide for payment of consequential damages, but provides for the payment of damages for land taken by the county.

TROUBLE PLENTY FOR MR. STOKES

Convicted of Stealing Chickens in Wilbur He Registers for Visit at 1818 Wall Street—His Wife Left Him Friday—He is Not to Annoy Her.

Abram Stokes, 60 years old, of No. 5 Dewitt street, is having plenty of trouble these days, but evidently he has no one to blame but himself. He was arrested a few days ago on the complaint of John Gregory of Wilbur on a charge of stealing some fifteen chickens from the Gregory hen roost at various times. The hearing was adjourned until this morning.

In police court today Judge Schirick after hearing the evidence found Stokes guilty and sentenced him to pay a fine of $15 and to serve 60 days in the county jail. The jail sentence was suspended pending good behavior on the part of Stokes.

Stokes said he did not have the $15, and later in the day registered at 1818 Wall street for the ensuing fifteen days.

According to the police Stokes's wife left him on Friday taking the four children with her. The 60 days sentence was suspended with the understanding that Stokes was not to annoy his wife in any way.

GEESE IN ZOO

"If it were true, as some say it is," the African Spur-Winged Goose said, "that geese were so extremely foolish, they wouldn't bother to bring so many of us to the zoos, I am sure.

"Now I am a goose and yet I am in the zoo. So they can't think I am so utterly ridiculous.

"Besides, I have unusual things about me. All of us Mr. Geese, when we're seeking our mates, fight all the other Mr. Geese that get in our way.

"We have long spurs which are quite sharp, hidden in our wings and we get them out when they are required, and quite often they are needed for use by the young Mr. Geese.

"We want the mates we pick out and we fight for them and they feel highly flattered.

"To be sure, it spoils them a little bit but then we get what we want that way, and that is extremely nice. That makes up for spoiling them, quite, quite."

"We are here in the zoo, too," said Mr. Bar-Headed Goose, "and pray do not forget us."

"What about you?" asked the African Spur-Winged Goose. "Do you fight for your mates?"

"No," Mr. Bar-Headed Goose answered.

"Then what do you do?" asked the African Spur-Winged Goose. "You should do something or have something interesting about you. Most creatures have, if we bother to find out, and so I hope you have. You notice I'm bothering to find out."

"I Am as Handsome."

"Well," said the Bar-Headed Goose, "I'm from the mountains of the central part of Asia. Yes, they must think something of me and of my family to bring me such a great distance.

"There we build our nests more than a mile above the sea. But that isn't why they brought us here. I will tell you why."

"Do," said the African Spur-Winged Goose.

"We are considered more handsome than any other geese."

"Well, that is a distinction," said the African Spur-Winged Goose.

"I am as handsome as any geese from this part of the world, though," said the White-Fronted Goose. "I came from Alaska where I lived in a hollow which we called our nest, as we made the lovely ground floor and walls and ceiling of moss and other soft things which we put over the sand."

"I'm nothing but a Common Wild Goose, but still they asked me if I would stay in the zoo, so I'm staying to oblige them.

"Yes, with all the geese that they have here I do not think anyone can make fun of the geese and call them so foolish and so silly and all those things they have called them.

"For they've brought us here for people to come and look at along with the lions and bears and tigers and elephants."

"Of course," said the African Spur-Winged Goose, "I am more of a duck than I am of a goose."

"What is the matter with you?" asked the White-Fronted Goose. "Are you becoming ashamed of being a goose?"

"Yes; what is the matter with you?" asked the Bar-Headed Goose. "I'd like to know that, too. I'd really like to know why you say you're more of a duck than a goose."

"Are you going back on us?" asked the Graylag Goose, who was of the family of wild geese who are the relatives of the barnyard geese.

"We're not ashamed of being geese. We're proud of it. We think people are foolish to think geese are foolish!

"We're not ashamed of what we are. What is the matter with you?"

"Yes, tell us, tell us," they all shrieked.

There was a great deal of noise then in the pond, where they were all swimming, which had been made for them in a house in the zoo, for it was winter time.

"I will tell you; pray be patient," said the African Spur-Winged Goose.

"He will tell us," they all shrieked, "if only we will be patient."

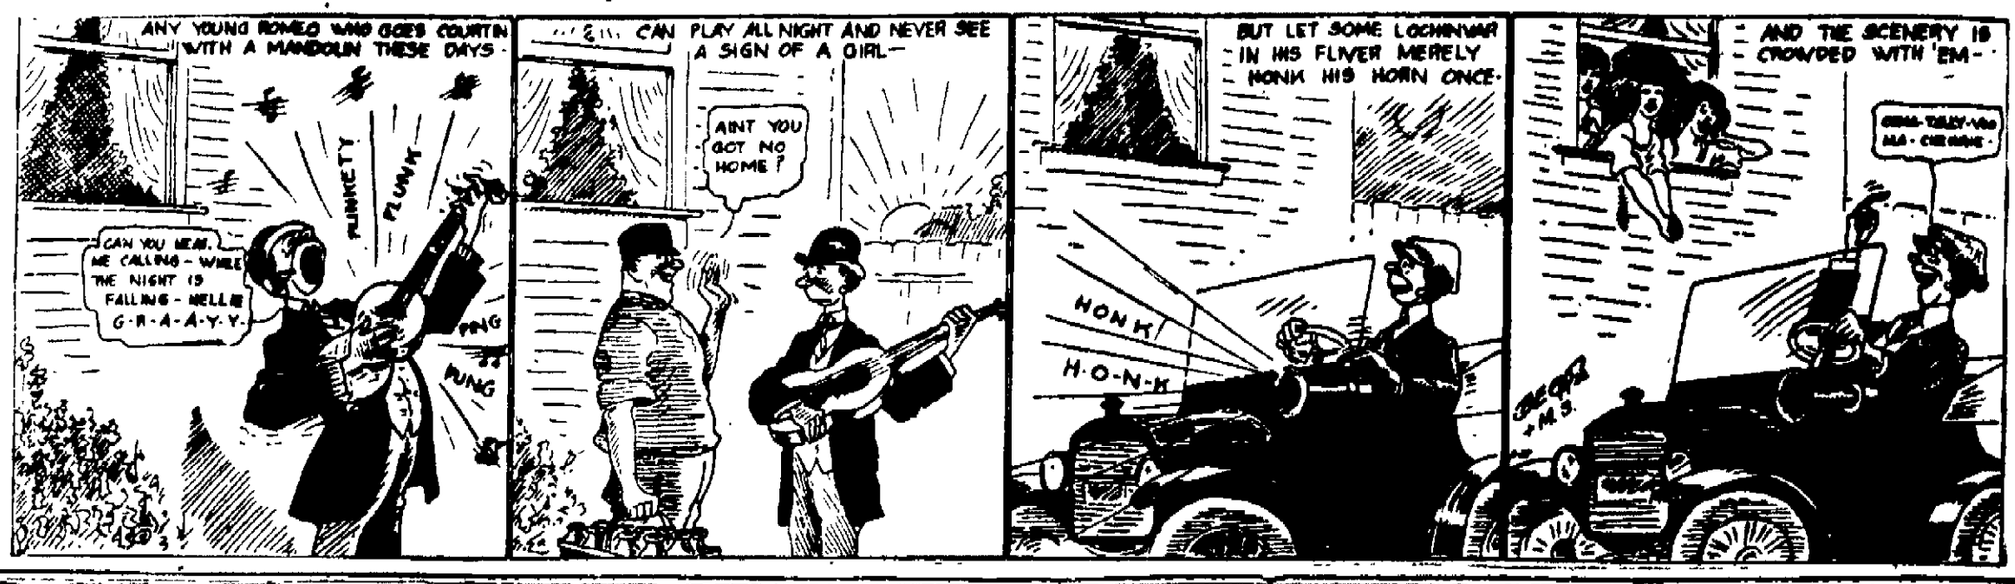

"Then let me speak," said the African Spur-Winged Goose.

"I am proud of being a goose and of having as my name the honorable name of Goose, but I am somewhat of a duck as far as my looks are concerned. I cannot help those, you know, and I am proud of being a goose, for that is the name I keep, you see."

"Yes, he shows by that he is proud of being a goose. It is all right," the others shrieked.

BROWN SUGAR DISHES

The flavor of brown sugar is so generally liked that we may now use it more plentifully. In the good old childhood days was there ever anything that tasted better than bread and butter sprinkled with a little brown sugar? Let the children have it, as it is much more wholesome than most candies. It's maplelike flavor makes it especially attractive for candies.

Brown Sugar Parfait.—Take one-half cupful each of brown sugar and water and cook without stirring, shaking the pan often to prevent burning. When a drop from the spoon makes a thread remove from the heat and pour over the whites of two eggs which have been beaten stiff. Beat until cold, then add one cupful of cream whipped stiff, flavor and pack in a mold; pack in ice and salt for three or four hours.

Brown Sugar Pudding.—Beat two egg yolks with one scant cupful of dark brown sugar, two tablespoonfuls of flour and one tablespoonful of creamed butter. Mix smooth, then add one cupful of rich milk gradually until smooth. Cool slightly and add the beaten whites of the eggs. Mix lightly and serve garnished with bits of grape jelly.

Brown Sugar Tapioca.—Soak four tablespoonfuls of tapioca in one quart of cold milk, add a pinch of salt, butter the size of an egg half a cupful of brown sugar and a half cupful of raisins. Bake two hours.

Brown Sugar Frosting.—Beat the white of an egg until stiff, add two tablespoonfuls of cold water, three cupfuls of brown sugar and one teaspoonful of vanilla. Beat thoroughly, then add the flavoring.

Brown-Sugar Sauce.—Boil one cupful of brown sugar, add one-half cupful of hot water, one tablespoonful of flour, and when well cooked add one-half cupful of butter. Boil up and serve hot on cottage pudding.

TO GET AND HOLD HUSBAND

Woman Advises Her Sisters on a Matter That Is of Importance to the World.

Here, summarized, are Mrs. Roberta Menges' views of matrimony:

"Wifely extravagance is merely self-defense. Why? Because with all the amateur 'vamps' that are running about these days the woman who helps her husband save money is merely laying up a bankroll for another woman to spend.

"For every woman who loses her husband because she is at fault there are a thousand who lose their husbands because the men themselves are at fault.

"It takes a year to discover what a man really is; and the woman who can get on with a man for a year can find him compatible forever.

"There is a man, the right man, too, for every woman. If she puts herself out a little she can get two.

"Girls, go out and be seen if you want husbands.

"Wives, always smile, if you die doing it.

"Never complain; don't make him jealous or he will get tired and quit.

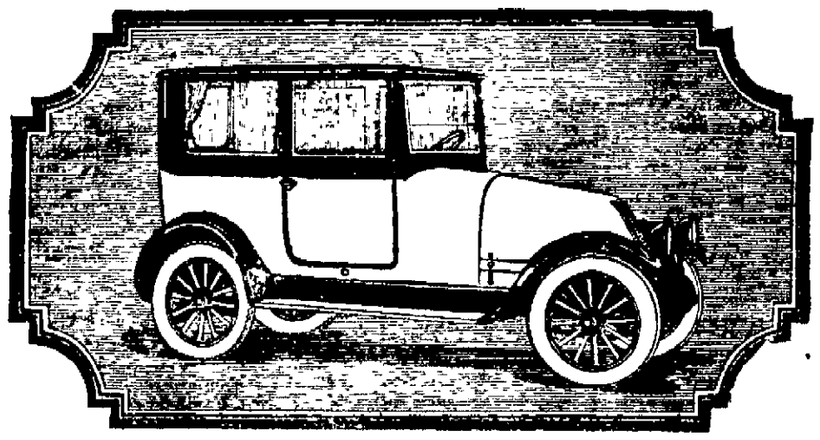

"If your husband is flirting a little, pretend not to know about it. Why look for trouble?

"Men always come home—if they love you in the beginning they will love you in the end."—Chicago American.

Women Taught to Shoot.

A number of good shots have been developed among the women employees of the Post Office department since they have been practicing with pistols at various ranges in the large cities, says the New York Evening Post. The practice is to familiarize the registry clerks with arms, so that in an emergency they can protect themselves and the valuable property in their care. Not satisfied with the government schedule of target work, some of them are spending their own time on other shooting ranges, with a view to entering amateur competitions.

WAS NOT ALWAYS HUMORIST

Mark Twain Had a Really Serious Side, Which the World Is Beginning to Realize.

Mark Twain's reputation rests on his humor. He burst upon the world as a writer recklessly jocund and hilariously informal. He gave the rough pioneer life of the West in his day a humorous turn that appealed to all as something different and unique.

His humor rested in large part upon carrying things to extravagant implications. He was quick to see and point out the irrelevant and incongruous. He pierced the hoax of pretension or assumption. People at first thought of him as something of a literary swashbuckler out of the untamed West, and many still think of him only as a humorist.

But he is now seen in larger perspective. Through the admirable biography of Albert Bigelow Paine and the fine tribute of William Dean Howells, the man is seen to have a weighty, serious side that promises to live as long as his humor. There was much in Twain's experience to give a serious turn to his thought. His rapid rise from obscure poverty to wealth and fame was not without its serious reverses. The honors that came to him, his friendships with thinking men and women, his bereavements that cut him to the heart, tended to make him look beneath the chances of misfortune to the springs and motives of human character and action.

As a result of this ripening and broadening, Twain came to have an indubitable seriousness, says a writer in the Minneapolis Journal. The chief characteristic of his serious thought was a distrust of conventional attitudes and prevailing opinions. His stories carried him far afield into realms of art, history, language study and religion. With cynical and burning insight he indicted the piety of Christian peoples who could make great professions and at the same time devise with increasing ferocity deadly means of making war. All the Christian nations he saw were at the game. "And the more advanced they are the bigger and more destructive engines of war they create."

Howells calls Mark Twain the Lincoln of American literature. There are several parallels between the two men. Both came from homes of poverty and were of humble parentage. Both had to make their way in the world through their own unaided efforts and both attained positions in the hearts of the people.

The cloud of seriousness and pathos does not hang over Twain as heavily or pervasively as over Lincoln. But the same rational insight that gave him power to find humor in the incongruities of life revealed to him also the still sad music of humanity. Mark Twain as a humorist will not be valued less in the coming years. But Twain as a keen observer of life and a man with serious purposes and ideals will be more valued than he has been.

BELONG TO PREHISTORIC DAY

Bones of Whales Possibly Ten Thousand Years Old Recently Unearthed on English Farm.

The skeletons of two whales, dating back, it is supposed, 10,000 to 12,000 years, were found by two workmen on a farm near Peterborough, according to the Westminster Gazette. Some of the teeth and bones were submitted to Doctor Garrood of Alconbury hill, Huntingdonshire, and he, in company with two zoological experts, visited the farm and obtained all the bones, with the result that one of the whales has been set up.

The whales were lying side by side under the peat, and just embedded in the clay. On the whole the bones are in good condition, and those that have been taken out carefully are scarcely broken. Unfortunately, the skulls are damaged.

It is believed that many thousand years ago these whales, and perhaps others, swam up a creek when the wash came further inland, and got caught at the top of a spring tide in a place where they were unable to turn.

Another theory has been advanced, though it is rather far-fetched. Some years ago a prehistoric boat was dug up in the same field, and the suggestion has been made that the crew of the boat was hunting the whales at the particular period.

Transposing the Terms.

A western jury had been called upon to decide a dispute over the ownership of some cattle which the defendant had been accused of stealing. It soon became apparent to all that he was innocent and the jury was out but a few minutes.

"Guilty," replied the foreman to the usual question from the court, "we find the plaintiff guilty."

"The court is trying the defendant, not the plaintiff," interposed the judge. There was a hasty consultation in the jury box, at the close of which the foreman rose again.

"Judge," he declared, "we find the defendant not guilty. Howsomever, [illegible] we been trying [illegible]."

German Town Bankrupt.

The little town of Lobejun, near Halle, is the first town in Germany that has gone bankrupt, according to The Hague Nieuwe Courant. The municipality had a deficit of 200,000 marks and the communistic majority of aldermen refused to cover it by new taxes. No salary was paid to anybody in the employ of the town.

Some Chance to Dodge.

"A celebrated hunter of big game almost fainted the other day in the street when he saw a woman bearing down on him in a motorcar."

"Well, what about it?"

"Why, he has faced a charging elephant without flinching."

"He probably knew where the elephant was going."

Spanish Girl's Courtship.

In the country [illegible] where rigid Spanish customs prevail, a girl does not enjoy much freedom. In default of outdoor amusements or exercise she spends many hours at her window gazing at whatever may be going on outside.

To a Spanish girl the important thing about a window is that it should command a view of a street or square. For if any young man wishes to engage Dolores or Pepita in conversation for a couple of hours every day here is the proper recognized place to do so. The Spanish young man will stand patiently day after day with his head at an impossible angle discoursing with his lady love.

No formal introductions need precede these window courtships, and if a young man finds that a girl's powers of conversation are not worthy to be cultivated for a lifetime, he may discontinue his visits without ceremony. Should they, however, result in a formal engagement, it will still be many weeks before he is admitted to the house.

KINGSTON, N. Y., FEB. 25, 1922.

The disquieting report that Japan has enough oil to last 300 years and the United States only enough to last 20 years calls to mind the fact that modern times the basic causes of war are economic. We may confidently expect however, that new American oil deposits will be discovered in due time.

At the London banquet in honor of Mr. Balfour, Ambassador Harvey referred to Senator Lodge as "the Nestor of the Senate, erudite in cloistered aloofness." Mr. Lodge might be pleased to have that said of him privately, but he will hardly thank Mr. Harvey for so public an announcement. Every politician with an election still ahead of him wishes to be thought a "good mixer."

Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis has done well to resign from the Federal bench and confine himself to his lucrative labors as high commissioner of organized baseball. Propriety was defied in the attempt to hold two jobs so entirely out of harmony. The spectacle would have been no less unwelcome if Mr. Hays had planned to stay in the Cabinet after undertaking his movie job.

At the Pilgrim dinner in his honor on his return to London, Mr. Balfour ventured to say that the British and American delegations at the Washington conference were "the governing influence of the whole of this great transaction." The Japanese delegates are doubtless of another opinion, for it looked as if they got about everything that they wanted. In any case it is surprising that Mr. Balfour should be indiscreet enough to make such a statement in public.

According to report Lord Allenby is convinced that the British protectorate of Egypt can not be maintained without measures which opinion in England and the world would not sanction, and he has convinced King George of this. It is even said that the British will withdraw and recognize Egyptian independence subject to certain guarantees, including security of the route to India.

THE RULE REVERSED.

Scores of American heiresses have married relatively impecunious foreign noblemen. There has never been a time when a very wealthy American woman who wanted a title could not annex one, and the opportunities are now more extensive than ever. Grand dukes and princes can be picked up in these days as well as the scions of ordinary nobility. It is the more surprising, therefore, to hear that the president of the International Harvester Company has formally announced the engagement of his daughter, Miss Mathilde McCormick, to Max Oser, proprietor of a Berne, Switzerland, riding academy. More surprising still is the statement that, though the young lady is only 16, the man of her choice is 48—or, according to an American cousin of his, 57. Proof of romantic love and unalterable determination on the part of the girl seems evident in the announcement that her American relatives, including her grandfather, John D. Rockefeller, Sr., approve of the match. Doubtless they reason that a riding master is rather better than a coachman or chauffeur, and perhaps they are pleased that Miss McCormick has not purchased a title.

COMFORT NOT HAPPINESS.

When most of us think of a millennium we picture a world happy and at peace because of its moral regeneration, but the millennium foreseen by H. G. Wells is a purely material affair—"a world-wide net of fine roads, great steady trains on renewed, broader tracks, long-distance aeroplane flights of the securest sort, great and beautiful towns, a park-like countryside studded with delightful homes," with the whole world accessible to everybody, "mountains to climb, deserts to be alone in, tropics to explore in wonder, beautiful places for rest," etc., etc.

Maurice Hewlett rises in protest, not so much because the picture is lacking in the spiritual element as because the thought of a paradise so utterly material bores him. A millennium with charms for him would furnish the simple life, with retirement, tranquillity and opportunity for meditation. "There are people," he says, "who like life to be a picnic, people who prefer a gig to a motor, people who would rather walk than use any kind of vehicle, people who have the gravest possible objection to being organized to do anything. There are, indeed, masses of such people; whole nations of men who know what they want and find happiness in wanting it."

Though to some minds this will suggest irresponsible bohemians if not shiftless tramps, it is not without its point. "The happiest nations have always been the poorest," says Mr. Hewlett. This may be open to question, but he certainly stands on sure ground when he says that neither wealth nor mechanical invention can bring happiness, though they do add to the comfort of life. His interesting conclusion that "it is much better to want things than to have them" is also true when rightly understood. Possession tends to cheapen and the goal we work toward has charms at a distance that lessen on closer view. As they look back over the years most men realize that there was more happiness in striving to achieve than in achievement. There is more satisfaction to be obtained from pursuit than from possession, more real joy in entertaining labor than in labor's fruits.

2. Are a colt's legs as long at birth as at full growth
3. What is the difference between a pigeon and a dove?

Answers in Monday's Nature Notes.

Answers to Previous Questions.

1. Why do canaries want cuttle bone?

They need it for the salt and lime it contains. All birds require some mineral substance to form the shell of their eggs. Bigger breeds can take coarser materials, as oyster shell, rock salt, charcoal, etc., or even coarse mortar. The cuttle bone is a refined form of mineral well adapted to the canary's bill.

2. What makes a bird-dog gun-shy and how can it be cured?

We hardly consider this a fair nature question. Most likely the dog while being trained, got hit by some of the shot, and was frightened and slightly hurt. He quickly learned to associate the hurt with the gun, and dodged at the sight of the latter. The only cure we can suggest is petting and kindness, showing him the gun and trying to overcome his dread.

3. I have a collared lizard. How can I keep it?

This lizard lives naturally in hot dry country, and should have a box of warm, dry sand. Do not put other varieties of small life in the same pen, except as food, for this lizard is cannibal, and will eat specimens almost as large as itself, even taking young snakes. Grasshoppers, crickets and mealworms may be used to help out the diet. Oddly enough, a favorite tidbit is flowers! Red clover and dandelion are liked.

HIGH SCHOOL CURRENT EVENTS

Wednesday found Old Man Empty in charge of the high school recitation rooms and of everything connected with high school life as Mr. Lewis and his children were enjoying a day in the country due to the observance of Washington's earthly advent. School was resumed Thursday, all day.

Thursday afternoon the debating council met, discussed and affirmed a motion before the clubs which has to do with the second team debating the Poughkeepsie High School's second team upon the subject "Resolved, That the United States Government Should Immediately Grant Independence to the Philippines" If the Poughkeepsie team will accept the proposition the debate will be staged in the high school auditorium the same evening that the first team debates in Poughkeepsie. The proposal was carried in the council meeting by a 7-2 vote. If the plans mature each school will be debating both sides of the question as it is done in colleges. The Kingston High School second team is defending the affirmative view, and when the debate comes off some interesting cross-sections of the Filipinos' problems will be revealed.

Orchestra practice was also held Thursday afternoon with the usual splendid attendance. The orchestra has arrived by easy stages to the point where nothing but an indulgence in the rendition of the latest popular airs will satisfy and Mr. Spaulding who is a past-master at the art of playing well anything that comes his way in the music line has been drilling his charges in this phase of ensemble work.

The Girls' Varsity practiced Thursday in preparation for their game this afternoon with the Y. W. C. A. team at Albany and from all reports received from Miss Seiner, the coach Old Lady Luck should be in attendance with the team. Miss Seiner took the following girls with her: Miss Elizabeth Richards, manager; Miss Estelle Rodgers, Miss Alice McLaughlin, Miss Marion Bruckner, Miss Willa Van Vliet and Miss Hilda Walker. The Albany girls played a game in the K. H. S. gymnasium and lost to the locals.

As was expected Friday morning came around and at the chapel exercises four students, Seniors in the Carter School of Eloquent Expression, appeared decked out in the usual Sunday finery.

The first speaker was Fred Ehnes who gave quite commendably a cutting from McKinley's "Characteristics of Washington." Mr. Ehnes was followed by Miss Beatrice Mann whose offering was an extract from one of Longfellow's poems, "The Tapestry Weavers." Longfellow loomed upon the horizon in the next selection and his thoughts were passed on to the students by Miss Isabel Herdman who gave another of his poems. The last offering was given by Walter Kidd who bared a "Man's Heart." In his recitation of Sinclaire Lewis's book.

A little one act sketch will be given in assembly in the near future and as it will be the first of its kind since the Christmas play its presentation will be anxiously anticipated.

Miss Walton wishes to announce that a dramatization of Longfellow's poem, "The Children's Hour," is enacted daily in Hall A at the close of the afternoon session, all of the characters being depicted by the scamps of the school, and as a stern moral is attached to the presentation the public is invited.

Monday afternoon the Senior boys will endeavor to trim the Junior boys in a basketball match to be played between the two classes.

Saugerties High is slated to play the boys' Varsity here next Friday.

The Prisma party, February 18, was one joyous affair and was attended by 100 or more students who, on pleasure bent, lent their gay spirits to the festal occasion.

Upon entering the girls' lunch room, the place wherein the party was put into action, each guest was handed a St. Valentine's heart adorned by Daniel H. Cupid, with the table's number directing each one to his place. Under the jolly guidance of Miss Elizabeth Jenkins the games were started and progressed delightfully.

One of the games was so arranged that several "numbers" were herded into an adjoining room and liberated at infrequent intervals. Upon being released the boy or girl was handed a heart upon which was written a topic requiring one to speak of his idea of an ideal wife, or of a girl speaking of her idea of an ideal husband. This game was most successfully played and prizes were offered to the best "ideas." Harry Schryver won the boys' prize and accepted with all of the blushing modesty becoming a high school senior, while Mrs. R. H. Woodard, who has had experience along matrimonial lines, won first prize for the ladies.

Then a decidedly mean trick was played on the chaperones, when they, too, were herded out into the adjoining room and released one by one. Upon commutation of the adjoining room sentence each one was required to recite the Declaration of Independence, and the ignorance displayed by the chaperones was ludicrously amazing and, by the way the chaperones were Mr. and Mrs. Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. Woodard, Miss Condes and Miss Fit. To the one knowing the least about the declaration was given the prize and again Mrs. Woodard took the prize.

Soon after the chaperone "show down," refreshments of a most delicious species were served, after which the party removed to the gymnasium where the remainder of the evening was spent in dancing.

The decorating committee worked lengthily in order to give the affair a distinctive touch and for them it may be said that nothing could have been better.

In a recent meeting of the Latin Club a lecture on Italy was given with a supply of colored slides sent by the State Educational Department. Fred Schroeder, president of the club, delivered the lecture and he was aided by a volume pertaining to the subject also supplied by the department.

The lecture told of the conditions in Italy during the past and present periods of history and dealt with beautiful descriptions of the old ruins of the Roman public buildings. A description of the life of the Italians was also taken into explanation and altogether the lecture was enjoyed by all.

A motion is before the club which provides for the admittance of members of the Senior class and if the sentiment of the majority holds until the settlement of the question, as it is now the admittance of those seniors desiring to join will be permitted.

A Senior meeting was held Tuesday afternoon and previous to the meeting Mr. Lewis made it known that he desired the attendance of all the students expecting to be graduated in June, whether they were members of the class. In the meeting the reports to be sent to the Educational Department preparatory to the issuance of a Regent's diploma for those who will have completed the required course of study by June were prepared.

President Muller announced that Miss Carter desired to meet all of the Seniors wishing to make the cast for the play "Pomander Walk," which is to be given May 5. —and the ear could not tell the difference

ALICE VERLET, the famous concert contralto, recently made a tour of the country singing with the New Edison Diamond Disc. Everywhere people were held spellbound by this daring test of tone re-creation. The ear could not distinguish the original from Edison's re-creation of it.

Only Mr Edison's perfected musical instruments could withstand such a test. No mere mechanical reproduction, but the re-creation of the original tone. The actual artist in all her artistry.

A test which Edison's re-creation of any artist's voice or instrumental performance will sustain in actual comparison with the artist standing beside Edison's new instrument.

Mathilde McCormick daughter of Harold F. McCormick, Chicago "harvester king," will have a variety of American relatives when she marries Max Oser, Swiss riding master. John D. Rockefeller, grandpa of Mathilde, also will have some new kin. From Chicago and Milwaukee more than half a dozen cousins-to-be are proclaimed their impending kinship with the McCormicks and Rockefellers.

When Emil Burgy, Chicago in-terior decorator, called at the McCormick home to apprise Mathilde that he was to become her cousin, the young heiress was "not at home." In the group surrounding the granddaughter of John D., are six persons for whom kinship with the McCormicks looms.

HURLEY.

Hurley, Feb. 25.—Little Miss Inez Burck held a valentine and birthday party last Saturday evening at the Freer homestead. To be sure valentine day had come and gone but this second celebration was all the merrier: the little lady's birthday gave added zest to the occasion. Miss Inez had invited ten little friends to help enjoy the occasion. These were the Misses Lucille Smith, Irene and Nita Snyder, Mina Malcolm, Gladys Schweinler, and Masters Loughran Vanderlyn, Roger Ten Eyck, Walter Frost, Christopher Lamphear and Robert Young. The hours were from 2 to 5 o'clock but the evening passed so quickly that the time was enough stretched to 9 o'clock. The guests romped and frolicked and played and enjoyed games to their own pleasure and amusement of the grown ups who guided the evening. Supper came of course, as an added attraction and all enjoyed with wheated appetites the dainties including ice cream that were served, the birthday cake was naturally the crowning feature of the supper. It displayed seven candles one for each year of Miss Inez's age and an extra one to grow on. This cake was made by the little lady's grandmother. There were numerous presents and there is now the recollection of a jolly good time.

Frank Snyder is having erected a large, up-to-date refrigerator in his shop.

John Ostrander lost a valuable horse a few days ago.

Master Loughran Vanderlyn had a visit from his father on Wednesday.

NEW PALTZ.

New Paltz, Feb. 25.—Miss B. Phaff a member of the Normal faculty, had the misfortune to sprain her ankle last Week but she has improved so rapidly that she is again attending to her duties at school.

Lewis Ackert, who formerly worked for Philip Deyo & Son, has accepted a position with Mr. Higgins in his new store, corner of South Oakwood and Main streets.

Miss Zelda E. Neher, a student at the normal school and whose home is in Kingston, was a guest of Miss Hazel Cluett of Poughkeepsie over the week-end and on Saturday evening was the guest of honor at a dinner given at Wagner Inn near Vassar College.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Reformed Church met at the home of Mrs. Clarence Woolsey on Friday afternoon of last week.

The house next to the Huguenot National Bank owned by Harold Vanderlin of Yonkers has been sold to Ralph Gardner of this village.

IN GAELIC SCRIPT

Irish Delegates Signed the Recent Treaty With England.

Was Devised by Monks of Ireland in the Early Days of Christianity—Ogham Is an Older System.

Signatures of the Irish delegates on the Irish-English treaty received considerable notice because they were the ancient Gaelic instead of the British names of the delegates, and because they were written in the florid and, in English eyes, distorted, Gaelic script. For one not accustomed to the Gaelic style of writing it was difficult to make out the signatures.

Gaelic script is old. It was developed by monks in Ireland in the early days of Christianity. Yet there is an older script than this. There is a more genuine Gaelic system of writing, known as Ogham.

Ogham is the system of writing which grew from some root which may have been contemporaneous with the root of the Celtic race. And, curiously, Ogham may still be found in traces in Ireland among the Cymri of Wales and the Gaels of Scotland. Ogham specimens may be found engraved on flat rocks in whatever sections of earth Celts were in the days of Ogham.

There is a story of a shopkeeper in a little town in Ireland, who lived less than a hundred years ago and who was nagged continually while he lived by the authorities because, they said, he had no sign above the door of his shop. He tried to show them the sign and tried to read it to them, and finally someone who knew what Ogham was satisfied the authorities by translating it into letters which the authorities recognized. The scratches over the door of the shop, when put into English letters, really spelled out that old Irishman's name.

Nobody knows how Ogham started—or when. The nature of the writing—the foundation of it—has led men to believe it grew in a time when the only writing surfaces were blocks of stone. It is essentially a script for scratching.

The Ogham alphabet has 20 letters, beginning, in order, with B, L, S, instead of the A, B, C of the Phoenician alphabet, which must have been born ages after Ogham. The Ogham alphabet is divided into four groups; all the letters are alike, being lines, and are distinguishable from one another by the number of lines used, by position with relation to the basic line or to each other, or by posture—that is, in one group the short lines slant. All are short lines except the one long one, the basic line, which is horizontal. The letters are built on this, below or above it.

Is the Arctic Ocean Cold?

Vilhjalmur Stefansson says in the World's Work: "I have spent in the polar regions 10 winters and 13 summers myself, and during most of that time I have carried reliable thermometers, so that I could say from my own experience how cold it is up there in winter, but I prefer to quote the records of the Canadian and American weather bureaus. I have written both of them and asked them to give me the lowest temperature ever recorded in the Canadian station at Herschel island on the north coast of Canada near the mouth of the Mackenzie river, and the American station near Point Barrow, at the north tip of Alaska, about 300 miles north of the Arctic circle. The replies in both cases were identical: 'We have never recorded anything lower than 54 degrees Fahrenheit below zero.'

"The other day I was reading over a report of the meteorological observations of my Arctic expedition of 1913-18, made by the second in command, Dr. R. M. Anderson. He says: 'The lowest temperature of the winter was 46 degrees below zero,' or about like Saranac Lake, New York state, which is a winter resort."

Jazzes Them Up.

Digging the family out of bed in the morning to the sound of a phonograph is the successful method discovered by the mother of a large and sleep-loving brood in the Sheepshead bay section. Every member of the family except the mother goes out either to school or to work, and as there isn't an early bird in the whole family it has proved rather difficult for mother to get the household started in time to evade reproofs of school authorities or to keep their jobs.

Recently she noticed how her children doted on jazz and thought out her famous early rising plan. Before going to bed she tied one end of a piece of string to the hammer of the alarm clock and the other end to the starting lever of the phonograph. Clock and jazz started in magical accord the next morning and by 6:30 the family was downstairs dressed and dancing up an appetite.—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

Professional "Aunts.

Miss Fort of London is the inventor of the "Universal Aunt" who stands ready to perform all kinds of services at so much an hour. She has eight women in her employ, each one of which has some specialty. Some stand ready to take children to places of amusement, others to act as guides. There are nurses, teachers, shoppers and chaperons. There is constant demand for the services of these women and Miss Fort is making a fine living at the head of her body of "aunts."

Trial by Jury.

Trial by jury antedates Alfred the Great. That monarch organized juries of 12 men, but even earlier six Welsh and six Anglo-Saxons acted as a jury in disputes between the Welsh and Saxons.

Thrift.

To live well differs from living extravagantly: for the first comes from moderation and a sufficiency and good order and propriety and frugality, but the other comes from intemperance and luxury and want of order and want of propriety. And the end (the consequence) of the one is true praise, but of the other blame. If, then, you wish to live well, do not seek to be commended for profuse expenditure.—Epictetus (A. D. 90).

Love Affair Suddenly Ended.

When I was in my seventh year of school I became very much in love with a boy in the eighth grade. One day when I was at his house to see his sister he and a friend of his fixed a pail of ice-cold water on the top of a door. I was the first to open the door and the water fell on me. This was a sudden end of my first love affair. —Chicago Journal.

WHY SUFFER WITH GOITRE?

Saturday Health Talk No. 66

By Froude & MacKinnon

Uncle Ben Says:

"Styles may come and go. Nevvy, but one thing always in style is good health."

Goitre is due to abnormal gland activity. It causes a disfiguring enlargement of the neck, and claims both men and women among its victims, but in a majority of cases women are the sufferers. No disease is more of a scourge to women because of its disfiguring possibilities.

Whether the goitre is of the watery or the fibrous type, the cause lies in the disturbed action of spinal nerve impulses due to pressure upon the spinal nerve openings at the spine. This pressure is removed by chiropractic spinal adjustments and Nature being given a chance restores normal glandular action. The watery type responds more quickly to adjustments. The fibroid or hard goitre responds more slowly.

HARD GOITRE IS GONE.

"It was big and hard, but now my neck looks normal. I think it is a miracle. My heart does not trouble me any more and the ovarian trouble which I had for nine years is gone, much to my surprise. I had spent a fortune doctoring but never got relief until I began with chiropractic. I thought my days were numbered, but now I feel like a new person."—M. A. Pinnow, Chiropractic Research Bureau Statement No. 1294R.

WHEN HEALTH BEGINS

When health begins depends on when you telephone 776 for an appointment. Consultation is without charge. Our invariable rule is never to accept a case that we are not confident we can benefit.

We are graduates of the Universal and Palmer Schools of Davenport, Iowa—the world's foremost chiropractic colleges.

The system of painless adjusting originated by us is acknowledged far superior to any method heretofore in use.

Chiropractic means "done by hand." The true chiropractor adjusts the joints of the backbone to restore alignment and remove nerve pressure. He needs and uses nothing but his bare hands.

"millions now living will never die"—Judge Rutherford

THE MOST MOMENTOUS EVENT OF EARTH'S HISTORY is the near establishment of God's kingdom among men; but, strange to say, this dominating theme of the Bible has been almost entirely overlooked by those who profess the Christian religion. Every one of the inspired writers testified concerning a time of everlasting happiness for the human race—"times of restoration" of lost blessings and possessions. Jesus and his Apostles preached that this gospel of blessing is for the vast majority; not a message of woe for all except a few.

THE KINGDOM OF GOD which they heralded is the same as foretold by the prophets in such thrilling and positive language. Not a mysterious, intangible arrangement having no meaning for the toiler and the sufferer, but one which will bring such practical and understandable things as complete health, beautiful homes, luxuriant vegetation, sublime climate, righteous laws and—greatest of all—unending life upon the earth.

THE SCRIPTURES are clear in their proclamation that many people will be so favored as to live through the present transition period when mankind passes from the thraldom of Satan's misrule to the glorious liberty of the kingdom of God, and these will actually never die. It is your duty and privilege to inform yourself concerning the cause of the present universal unrest and the wonderful blessings to follow by attending the lecture by

MT. TREMPER.

Mt. Tremper, Feb 25.—The farmers' institute held at the hall on Wednesday, Washington's Birthday, was quite largely attended, the inclement weather preventing many from attending that otherwise would have been there. In the morning very interesting addresses were given by Mr. Cook and Mr. Chase, of the Farm Bureau. Then the ladies served a very fine luncheon. The afternoon session began with singing and a very interesting talk by Mr. Davidson on "Washington," in honor of the day, and then the ladies adjourned to another part of the hall where Miss Fisher and Miss Earle, of the Home Bureau, discussed several interesting subjects with them, and Mr. Cook and Mr. Chase devoted the same time to the men, in all a very profitable as well as enjoyable day was spent by all present.

Mr. and Mrs. John Davidson and little son, Jack, of New York city are guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Davidson, Sr.

Miss Lelia Randall was a Kingston caller, Tuesday.

An apron and necktie social was held at the church hall Thursday evening for the benefit of the church. A very social time was enjoyed.

What might have proved a very serious accident happened on Wednesday when the three seated wagon of W. C. Riseley, which was conveying Mr. and Mrs. John Davidson, Sr., and Mr. and Mrs. John Davidson, Jr., to the institute, slid over the embankment, upsetting and all being thrown out, near W. A. Sivvert's. A car met the carriage coming down the hill as they were going up and the horses became a little frightened and owing to the very icy roads the carriage slid. No one was seriously injured, which was very fortunate and their many friends were indeed glad they escaped so luckily.

Mrs. John Davidson, Sr., and Mrs. John Davidson, Jr., and little son, Jack, called on Mrs. W. A. Sivvert and Mrs. N. D. Wilber Monday afternoon.

Miss Gracie Randall, who has been confined to the house with the grip, is able to be out again.

EX-SERVICE MEN'S HOSPITAL

Dr. Albert Wehenkel Heads Detroit Institution—All Employees Have Been in Service.

The only hospital in the country operated by ex-service men for the benefit of ex-service men has been opened at Camp Custer, Mich. It is the new Roosevelt American Legion hospital converted from a former community house at Camp Custer and turned over to the Legion by the state. The superintendent is Dr. Albert M. Wehenkel, of Detroit, Mich.

Dedicated by Marshal Foch, the hospital opened its doors to former service men of Michigan suffering from tuberculosis. Each doctor, nurse and employee at the institution has been in some branch of the government service. Each patient is given a separate room, tastefully decorated and supplied with running water. They are kept at the hospital until their case has been pronounced "arrested" and then are placed immediately in vocational training to prevent a period of idleness.

Doctor Wehenkel has been tuberculosis expert for the Detroit board of health for seven years. He saw two years of army medical service during the war.

STEPS FROM NAVY TO STAGE

Charles Hanford, Shakespearean Actor Who Served as Chief Yeoman, Returns to Footlights.

To doff the robes of King Lear for the blue wool of the gob was no exertion for Charles B. Hanford, one of America's foremost Shakespearean actors. Often he had said, in his role as Hamlet, "Now might I do it pat." He did it pat: he enlisted and became chief yeoman in the navy.

Hanford didn't consider this tragic. To give up a bright stage career for life on the ocean wave was, as he put it merely playing a role in a bigger drama than Shakespeare ever thought of writing.

Today he is back on the job, and recently staged "The Merchant of Venice" for the benefit of the George Washington post of the American Legion—the first post organized.

KEEP AWAY FROM THE ORIENT

Ex-Service Men Are Warned That Jobs Are Scarce and Only Natives Are Employed.

Whipple S. Hall, who traveled 10,000 miles to represent the department of the Philippines at the national convention of the American Legion, warns all ex-service men to keep away from the Orient unless they have enough money to bring them back home again.

Discharged veterans of the Siberian front, many accompanied by Russian wives as destitute as their husbands, worked their way to the islands as merchant sailors and are now off the hands of the Legion and the auxiliary. Many of them, penniless, worked their way down through China in the belief that the Orient blossomed with good jobs. Virtually all manual labor and small clerical work is performed by natives.

Poor Man's Pride.

So many men to whom the East side missionary had given money had expressed a preference for a certain lodging house that he wondered what constituted its particular attraction.

"It makes us feel self-respecting," said the men, when questioned.

So far as the mission worker could see, it was the typical cheap lodging house, whose inducements to self-respect were not discernible to the ordinary eye. So he interviewed the manager.

"That's easy," replied the latter and pointed to a sign above the desk:

"Gentlemen Are Requested to Leave Their Valuables With the Clerk."—American Legion Weekly.

Last Man Killed in War.

A sergeant of the Seventy-ninth division who left his lines at 10:35 a. m. on November 11, 1918, and was killed in attempting to capture a German machine gun, is cited at American Legion headquarters as a claimant for the honor of being the last man killed in the war. At 11 o'clock sharp, according to the report, the doughboy was picked up and carried to the American lines.

Do You Know the "Guidguid?"

The "guidguid" is sometimes described as a barking bird. This term is applied in tropical America to any small bird that gives a quickly repeated cry, particularly to those which seek their insect food on the "floor" of the forest.

LOANS FOR EX-SERVICE MEN

Commander MacNider to Originator of Plan to Aid Men in Need of Assistance.

Buddies who are "broken in health and battling their way through red tape for their just disability compensation" will be the beneficiaries of a big rotating fund, details of which are being worked out at national headquarters of the American Legion.

The fund is designed to provide loans, without security and at a low rate of interest, to ex-service men in every state who are in need of assistance. Commander MacNider, who originated the plan, says that such a provision is of vital necessity in order that worthy men may keep their self-respect during a period of financial stress. Ex-soldiers who do not need the ready cash provided by the government's payment of adjusted compensation have signified their willingness to turn over their bonus to the fund.

Hundreds of instances of sick and wounded ex-service men falling back on charity while their claims were being reviewed are shown by Legion reports. Tubercular victims whose condition has been brought on by poison gas or exposure have gone to sanitariums in the West and have been denied immediate treatment and become public charges, it is declared. Some help for these men during the period of readjustment is of prime importance, according to MacNider.

HELPED ENTERTAIN THE BOYS

Mrs. Jessie Erskine Danced in France—Now Treasurer of County Legion Committee.

Mrs. Jessie A. Erskine says she used to dance 2,000 steps a week at Tours, France, for the edification and amusement of gobs, doughboys and leathernecks, some of whom, she admits, were attractive. Now she dances almost as many steps in holding down her job as treasurer of the Niagara county committee of the American Legion, in New York state.

Mrs. Erskine was chief stenographer in the quartermaster department, and was also chief jester in the department of sports and pastimes, which was less official but just as interesting. She succeeded in being A. W. O. L. twice without being given her sailing papers.

DIRECTS MORTARS OR SOULS

Eliot Porter, State Chaplain of Legion in Montana, Recognizes No Denominational Bars.

Eliot Porter's efficiency in directing trench mortars was no greater than his proficiency in directing souls. As state chaplain of the American Legion in Montana, he built up a splendid reputation as notable as that which he won as captain in the British field artillery. Mr. Porter, who is a Presbyterian, was one of the three men who wrote the national memorial ritual for the Legion. He worked in conjunction with a Catholic priest and a Jewish rabbi. He recognizes no denominational bars in his Legion work, and at the 1921 convention nominated a Catholic to succeed him as state chaplain.

Carrying On With the American Legion

A proposal has been made in Washington that the President give an American flag to the next of kin of each unnamed soldier whose body is not returned from France.

* * *

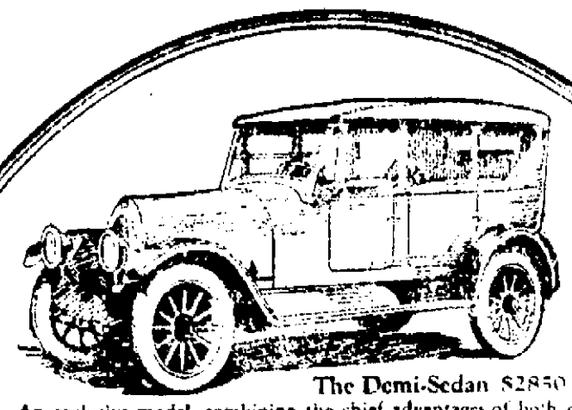

The Congressional Medal of Honor laid upon the tomb of Great Britain's unknown soldier will be encased in a glass-fronted box and affixed to the tomb, according to the wish of the dean of Westminster Abbey.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. David Winter Wednesday evening was the scene of a very gay surprise party given in honor of their daughter Margaret and about twenty of her friends were in attendance. Progressive games were played to the delight of every one, especially Webster Crane, and during the course of the evening dancing was enjoyed, the music being rendered by "Victor Rolla." During a cessation of the dancing, Mr. Crane who possesses a rare quality of baritone voice, sang by popular request "Asleep in the Deep." Otis Waite supplemented Mr. Crane's number which was generously encored, with some of his witty sayings and a versatile repertoire of monologues. Mr. Atkins also gave "I'm Never Too Old to Learn, And as I Older Grow the Less I Know." Delicious refreshments were served after which the happy party dispersed.

Useful Fireplace.

At the Evanston (Ill.) headquarters of the Boy Scouts, a fireplace has been constructed for the study of geology and physiography, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. At the base are shown the different kinds of materials, in their relative positions, that make up the strata of the earth. At the top, many different specimens of ore are shown. Models of a lake bed, and of a river bed, are also built into the fireplace, which is ornamental as well as useful, and it is asserted that the fireplace is the only one of its kind in the country.

News of Interest to Members of Fraternal Societies.

Members of Camp 30, P. O. of A. are requested to be present Monday evening at their lodge rooms on Henry street, where they will have initiation. Some of the ladies of Camp 31, from Kerhonkson are expected. The degree team will wear white.

Friday evening the Ladies' Auxiliary of Tarpen Camp, S. of V., and the G. A. R. enjoyed a social entertainment at the home of Mrs. Cornelius Cramer, No. 132 East Chester street. A very enjoyable evening was spent by all. The home was decorated beautifully for the occasion with American flags, roses, carnations, sweet peas and ferns. The guests departed at an early hour expressing many thanks for the wonderful evening of enjoyment. Cramer's taxi service donated their autos and conveyed the members to and from the home.

On Friday evening at the Masonic Lodge rooms on Wall street, Clinton Chapter, No. 445, O. E. S., held an informal reception in honor of R. W. G. D. Sister Alice E. Norwood. Solos were rendered by Mrs. Helen Stern Mann and Miss M. Helen Freer, and a duet by Mrs. Charles Clinton and Mrs. H. W. Smith. Mrs. G. K. Colden presented Sister Norwood with a gift from the officers of 1919. Miss M. Helen Freer also presented Sister Norwood with a gift from some of her friends. Sister Norwood thanked them in a few well chosen words. R. W. A. G. L. Harry Tremper was present and addressed the chapter in a very pleasing manner, after which refreshments and a social hour were enjoyed.

It Wasn't Tom.

Charles M. Lord of Elmendorf street, and not Tom Lord, as stated in Friday's Freeman, was the bugler at the D. A. R. George Washington's birthday party.

WARD OFF DANGEROUS "COLD"

Much Sickness May Be Prevented by Adoption of a Few Preventive Measures.

A few precautions will disengage the activity of catching cold from exposure to the rains of winter as well as its snows. Some of the simplest preventatives are those that nature herself furnishes. Nose drops to relieve a cold when wet if he or she will walk or run home briskly. Wet clothing draws the heat from the body and lowers the temperature below normal. This is dangerous. But if the heat of the body is maintained by exercise, little or no harm results from the wet clothing. If obtainable, two or three drops of spirits should be eaten. This helps the heart's action and supplies considerable heat to the body.

Many decide the popular belief that it is impossible to catch cold from a bathing with sea water, but the statement holds much truth. The salt retards evaporation, and thus chilling of the body is delayed. Obviously that is an advantage. Further, the salt acts as a stimulant, and assists the circulation of the blood. That is another advantage. Thus, unless in unusual circumstances, there is much less chance of a cold resulting from an immersion in the sea than in fresh water.

Those who feel much depressed in wet weather should form the habit of increasing their rate of breathing. The depression is due to the increase of ozone in the air, and the consequent proportionate decrease of oxygen. Quicker breathing, as is obvious, pumps more oxygen into the system, and the depression departs.

COREAN BOY MATURES EARLY

Youngster May Be Married at Age of Seven, According to Custom of the Country.

Any time after a Corean boy is seven he may be married, and he is seldom still unengaged at 12 or 14. At that time he winds his pigtail if he still runs one in those crop-headed days "puts a topknot" and swaggers a bit in the presence of the unbetrothed. Formerly, if a Corean boy had any schooling at all he squatted all day on the schoolroom floor, learning to read and write, but not to speak Chinese, and he would have thought himself well educated if he acquired a vague knowledge of the maxims of Confucius. He often felt content to carry a "jiggy" or to drive a pack pony or even to act as nurse to the baby while his older brother wrestled with the Chinese classics. Under the new regime the school hours are still long and strenuous, but the boys pursue a Japanese course of study in Japanese. They probably would vote their games more interesting than any curriculum whatsoever. Their national sport is stone-fighting, which they carry on during the first fifteen days of the New Year. At the same season they have sky tournaments, in which they cut the string of one another's kites and take the falling kites as prizes.—Marietta Neff in Asia Magazine.

Root's Cleverness.

A lawyer who once opposed Elihu Root in a breach-of-promise suit tells this story: "My client, for all her broken heart, was a very pretty and vivacious girl. Root defeated her—and me—by ending his defense with these words:

"Gentlemen of the jury, do you really think that this charming young lady's life is blighted or that her prospects of getting married are prejudiced in the least? I don't suppose you do. There is not one of you who would be averse to forming the acquaintance of so delightful a person. Why, look at her now—she is actually smiling at me, but I must at once inform her that I am not in the matrimonial market."—Boston Transcript.

Unlucky Tom.

A real old-fashioned Yankee was telling a friend of the ill luck experienced by his son Thomas.

"Take the last case, as an example," he said. "Just as soon as he went to Boston to work, Tom fell in love. She lived in one of the suburbs, and directly Tom made up his mind he liked her, he went and bought a fifty-trip ticket to her place and—"

"Well, what happened?"

"What happened? Why, he was turned down at the second call and the ticket was left on his hands! If that isn't hard luck, please tell me what is!"—Milwaukee Sentinel.

New Ship Signals for Use in Fog.

Most ship collisions in fog are due to the difficulty in detecting the exact direction that the whistle and bell signals come from. A veteran sea captain has devised a new method to overcome this.

He uses four signal horns of different tones, two sirens, a steam whistle and a steam gong, all operated by foot levers. Each of these corresponds to one of the cardinal points of the compass, and is sounded in a fog only when the ship is headed in that direction.

Sure of One Audience.

Having retold his favorite joke several times without eliciting even a polite smile from any of his listeners, Boggs turned angrily on his heel and muttered:

"I'll get a laugh on that story or I'll know the reason why. I'll go tell it to Smithers. He borrowed money from me yesterday."

Appreciation.

Charline likes to dine with one of the neighbors who has a large family. On returning one day from one of these trips she heaved a deep sigh and said: "My, but it must be nice to have a party family."

FUNDS PROBE IS DEMANDED

Lorillard Spencer, New York, Representing Legion, Asks for Investigation of Distribution.

Charges that money collected by radical organizations for soviet relief were being diverted into propaganda were made in a meeting of the National Civic Federation, New York city, by Lorillard Spencer, New York, representing the American Legion, who has called for a general investigation of relief fund distribution.

Spencer cited the Sacco-Vanzetti case to illustrate how propagandizing machinery is being speeded up, and his resolution mentioned the springing up of "numerous organizations now engaged in raising funds represented to be for Russian relief."

Although the activities of the independent relief organizations were up for attack, speakers were careful to emphasize the need of relief in Russia as distributed by the American relief administration.

THE LIVE WIRE SECRETARY

Miss Coletta Bartholemy, Official of the Oregon Auxiliary, Knows How to Get Results.

Live wire methods at entertainments, hospital visits, bazaars and dances won for Miss Coletta Bartholemy the election as executive secretary of the American Legion auxiliary in Oregon. That Miss Bartholemy fills the bill is the consensus of opinion in Oregon. She is reported as being one of the most executive of secretaries and at the same time one of the most secretarial of executives that has ever joined the auxiliary. Under her capable management the organization is making huge strides and is reporting progress in every department.

Totally Obscured.

A certain callow Chicago swain had an amazingly large mouth which he contorted into an all-pervading smile when he wished to make a good impression. His sweetie had persuaded him to "ask father," and the youth was determined to show himself to good advantage.

"Mister Jones," he began, stretching his principal feature to the utmost of geniality, "I have come to ask for the hand of your daughter, I—"

"Just a moment, young man," interrupted the old gentleman, mildly; "would you mind closing your mouth for a moment till I see who you are?"—American Legion Weekly.

One Way Round.

A Washington butcher one day delivered a pair of chickens to a tender-hearted housewife. She shuddered when she saw them.

"I should think," she said, "you would never have the heart to chop the heads off these innocent chickens."

"Ma'am," replied the butcher, "I haven't. That was one of the great problems of life, until I discovered a way out of it. Since then I haven't had a qualm of conscience."

"How in the world do you do it?"

"I don't chop the heads off the chickens any more. I chop the chickens off the heads."—American Legion Weekly.

So Sorry to Trouble.

A woman in an Ohio hotel came down to the office one evening and asked if she could get a glass of water. The clerk agreeably obliged and she disappeared with it, returning quickly for another.

"I'm so sorry to trouble you," she said.

The clerk assured her that it was no trouble but when she returned for a third glass and then a fourth he became curious and asked her what she wanted with so much water.

"I know you'll just scream when I tell you," she said, "but I'm trying to put out a fire in my room."—American Legion Weekly.

Marshal Foch's Advice.

"The way to move forward is by patience, by earnest endeavor, by diligent study, by tireless work," says Marshal Foch, who did a fair share of moving forward during the war. "Plan your battle of life in advance. Map out every detail of what you want to accomplish, and then follow out your program." The Marshal gives his formula for success in two sentences: "He who hesitates is lost. He who moves forward wins."

Card of Thanks.

We wish to thank the friends and neighbors for their many acts of kindness during the illness and death of our beloved mother, Mrs. Margaret Connelly; also the Jacobson shirt factory employes for the beautiful floral tributes.

An Empty Headed Boss

By CALVIN HENDRICKS

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.

Luella Marston looked at Howard in a dazed sort of manner. She could not quite understand what he was saying; and she did not dare to understand.

"Ranger never liked me. . . . Old Bransforth took his side . . . had to support him . . ." The sentences were meaningless to her.

Patiently Howard, taking both her hands in his, repeated the story. He had held a position in Bransforth's company for six years, until Ranger was made head of his department. Ranger was an empty-headed man with the sole idea of being a good disciplinarian.

Bransforth had sent for both of them, and Ranger had stated positively that it was impossible for them to continue to work together. At last Bransforth had turned to Howard.

"I'm sorry, Mr. Gray," he said. "But of course you understand I must approve of Mr. Ranger's course."

"Then I'll send you in my resignation, sir," said Howard.

Bransforth certainly treated him very fairly. He gave him two months' salary and a cordial letter expressing his keen regrets at their separation. Only, positions such as Howard had filled were almost impossible to secure. And Howard and Luella were to have been married that May.

"Never mind, dear. You will get a better position than before," Luella said consolingly.

Her fiance kissed her, but he knew the awful difficulty of the task before him. He had been getting eighty dollars a week, and the position had seemed so permanent that he had lived fairly well instead of trying to save money. He had only three hundred in the bank, for their first supply of furniture. The ceaseless tramp, tramp through the hot streets, with the constant rejection everywhere, wore on the young fellow's nerves. He hardly dared to see Luella now.

They might have been married happily three months before. Howard was becoming desperate.

He had always avoided those parts of the city contiguous to Bransforth's. And then—perhaps it was the heat, which had been intense that week, or the result of the nervous exhaustion brought about by his despondency—but a curious lapse of memory overcame him.

Luella called it fate afterwards.

The events of the past three months slipped from his mind completely. Once again he was a salaried employee of Bransforth and company.

The spell was still upon him as he climbed the long flight of steps up to the main office.

The office was half empty.

"Any mail for me today, Rogers?" he asked the office boy.

"I don't think so, Mr. Baldwin," the lad answered. "Gee, I'm glad to see you back, though."

A moment afterward Tait came up to him.

"We're mighty glad to see you back again, Baldwin," he said. "Mr. Bransforth said you were to go into his private office the moment you came in."

Howard looked up at Tait, and suddenly the absurdity of his presence there struck home to him.

Tait, mistaking his embarrassment for shyness, took him playfully by the arm and led him across the room to Mr. Bransforth's office. Mr. Bransforth looked up and, rising from his chair, gripped the young man warmly by the hand.

"I can't tell you how glad I am that letter found you," he said. "I hope you can come back to us, Mr. Baldwin. To think that after trying to locate you all this time the name of your old address should suddenly have come into my head!"

"First of all," he continued, "I must apologize frankly to you for my treatment of you. The fact is, Ranger came to us with the best of credentials from his old place. I took the trouble to look them up after he left, and found that he had written them himself and signed the name to them, too.

"Well, it didn't take long after your disappearance for me to find out that he was absolutely incapable for the work. Well, I want you to take his position. The salary is one-hundred dollars a week. I hope I can count on you."

"I can come," said Howard quietly, "on September the fifteenth."

Mr. Bransforth looked disappointed.

"Well," he said, "of course, if that is your ultimatum I must hold the position open for you. But if it is the matter of a holiday, perhaps a little later would do."

"No, sir," said Howard. "You see, I—er—well, I'm going to be married tomorrow."

And that was the best prophecy that Howard ever made.

Ever Unsatisfied.

"This man will be highly indignant," remarked the private secretary, "if you don't get him a government job."

"We must be philosophical," said Senator Sorghum. "If we get him the job he will be just as indignant in a few months if we don't succeed in assisting him to a raise in salary."

Chance to Get Cold.

Elsie—Charlie says I'm so cold. You don't think I'm cold, do you?

Frank—You couldn't be. You're so wrapped in yourself.

Beautiful Athens Gardens.

The gardens in Athens, which were laid out by an Englishman some years ago, are very beautiful. Many plants which in this country flourish in greenhouses are to be found in profusion there. Violets border all the beds and bloom throughout the winter.

The ill-fated dirigible Roma is seen here in a successful trial flight over the Potomac river. This photograph was taken a few days prior to the fatal crash in which the queen of the air was destroyed, entailing the loss of thirty-four lives.

Entangling love alliances bring aftermaths of sorrow. The quartet in the accompanying layout of pictures are involved in the latest case of entangled affections. Mrs. Maude Antcliffe, prominent in church circles, and P. C. Mosher, of Hyde Park, have been revealed as "lovemates" as the result of her husband attempting to marry Miss Helen Marie Boates at Boston. The law prevented the marriage of Antcliffe and Miss Boates when it was revealed that the former had a wife. Antcliffe had led his bride-to-be to the altar, when protest was made from a spectator in the church, who said that the former had a wife, Mrs. Antcliffe, who believed that a release given her by Antcliffe in 1918 was legal, lived with Mosher and bore him a daughter, now eight years old. Mosher is forty, Mrs. Antcliffe thirty-five. A daughter of Mrs. Antcliffe and her legal husband is twelve years old. Mrs. Antcliffe declares she had a right to live with Mosher, "in the eyes of God."

FOUND MANY PEDAL DEFECTS

Investigators Discovered Bad Condition of Affairs Among New York School Children.

The board of health of New York city has recently made a special study of the feet of the children in one of the public schools with a view to obtaining some idea of the prevalence of pedal defects among young boys and girls.

The examinations, made by orthopedic surgeons, appeared to show that such defects are much commoner than has been supposed. The number of children examined was 356. Seven per cent of the boys and 6 per cent of the girls were found to have deformed toes. Six per cent of the boys and 12 per cent of the girls had "flat feet." Forty-seven per cent of the boys and 74 per cent of the girls had "weak feet." Ten per cent of the boys and 17 per cent of the girls had ingrowing toenails. The feet of 39 per cent of the boys and 26 per cent of the girls revealed corns or other excrescences. Twenty-one per cent of the boys and 2 per cent of the girls walked with their toes turned in.

Most of these troubles were of a character admitting of correction and cure, with proper treatment. If neglected, said the surgeons, some of them might cripple and impair the efficiency of the children affected.

The surgeons recommended that all growing children be examined for such defects and that those affected be watched and treated, in order that later in life they may be "foot-sound."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Sixty Years a Golf Player.

Deputy Surgeon General Cooper of Norwood Park, England, who is ninety-three years old, has been playing golf for more than 60 years. The venerable medico, who is still working to correct a slice, played his first round on the historic St. Andrews course way back in 1858.—The Argonaut.

Reform.

"When you entered politics you announced yourself as a reformer."

"I am still a reformer," protested Senator Sorghum. "But I am obliged to be discreet, owing to differences of opinion as to which particular style of reform is entitled to precedence in public attention."

Wealth Vanishes in Smoke.

Every year 35,000 forest fires involving some 12,000,000 acres of timberland, cost us $30,000,000. Greater vigilance would save much of this appalling waste.

MRS. FISKE HERE TONIGHT

Kingston may thank the child labor law of Massachusetts for the opportunity of witnessing Mrs. Minnie Maddern Fiske in her newest success, "Wake Up, Jonathan," for without that law it is not likely that Mrs. Fiske and her company, would have been able to come to the Kingston Opera House this evening. The child labor law of Massachusetts is now so drastic that it compelled cancellation of a six weeks' engagement in Boston before Mrs. Fiske returned to New York city from her winter tour of the south and southwest, with the result that "Wake Up, Jonathan," is enabled to appear in several cities of New York state, including Kingston.

Four children whose ages range between nine and fourteen years appear in Mrs. Fiske's latest success, and her tour through the south and west has been accompanied by a great deal of discussion regarding the drastic child labor laws of some states. Pennsylvania has such a law, but State Labor Commissioner Connelly and the attorney general of the state have expressed themselves as heartily in favor of a modification of the law since witnessing "Wake Up, Jonathan," and witnessing the care which surrounds the four children in Mrs. Fiske's new production. The parents of the children accompany them on tour, and their tutoring while traveling is conducted through the Professional Children's School of New York which is under the supervision of the Gerry Society.

Mrs. Fiske will be a guest at the Stuyvesant while in Kingston.

WHAT IS OFFERED AT THE THEATRES

Mrs. Fiske Tonight—Keith Vaudeville Next Week—Orpheum Novelty.

"The Sign on the Door" is showing at Keeney's for the last times tonight. The play by Channing Pollock was a tremendous success on the stage, Mr. Pollock himself says that the picture production with Miss Talmadge is far superior. Buster Keaton in "The Playhouse" is a comedy clean as a whistle and all fun. Monday and Tuesday Tom Mix in "Trailin'," another of his famous action stories.

William Russell in "The Strength of the Pines," an exciting story of the Oregon timberlands, is the attraction at the Colonial Theatre tonight, also the hero of the chapter plays William Duncan in "Fighting Fate," a mystery detective story, for the next fifteen weeks. Monday "A Burglar for a Night."

Miss DuPont in "The Golden Gallows" is showing at the Auditorium tonight in a new kind of play. The comedy is Baby Peggy and the wonder pup "Brownie" in "Baby's Rag Doll." Monday Herbert Rawlinson in "The Wakefield Case."

Mrs. Fiske in "Wake Up Jonathan" tonight will be one of the best attractions ever presented here. Starting Monday the Opera House will change its policy and start with Keith vaudeville giving three high class acts and a photoplay of exceptional worth. There will be three performances daily, at 2:30, seven and nine, given at popular prices of admission. The opening program is Mr. and Mrs. Carter DeHaven in the comedy photoplay "The Girl in the Taxi," and the Keith vaudeville is "The Four Entertainers," a quartet of excellent singers, and Chad and Monty Huber, late of "So Long Letty Company" in a dance revue and Archer and Belford, two comedians with a pocket full of puns to make you laugh. This new departure should prove a treat to variety lovers and no doubt the offerings will draw capacity crowds. The program will change on Thursdays.

Local people have been interested in two of the four acts of vaudeville on the program of the Orpheum Theatre since Thursday. One is given by Aaron J. Steinhilber, a resident of this city, and his baby, in an unusually clever balancing act. The baby is a pretty, chubby girl 20 months old who holds her poise charmingly while being balanced on her father's hands, acting without fear and going through her part as if only playing. The other act is that of the 3 Piccolo Midgets, who reside near West Hurley in the summer having a small farm at Markle's Heights. They do several acrobatic stunts, head and hand balancing and Otto and Adolph Schemmel do a comic and swift boxing bout. There are two other vaudeville numbers on the program, besides moving pictures.

VAN BUREN ADDRESSES JAMAICA MASONIC LODGE

On "Traveling East," a History of Masonry.

Wednesday evening in Jamaica Lodge of Masons, at Jamaica, Long Island, before a very large and distinguished audience Alfred D. Van Buren, past master of Kingston Lodge and past district deputy of the Ulster-Greene District, delivered a most forceful and eloquent address. Mr. Van Buren spoke for over an hour and during that time he held the closest attention. His subject was "Traveling East." He traced Masonry from the remote antiquity to the present time. Coming down as he did from the earliest period of the order, Mr. Van Buren led up to the time of Washington, when the great president was master of his lodge in Alexandria, Virginia. How, when Washington took the oath of office as president of the United States it was administered to him by the then grand master of Masons of the state of New York in the Sub-Treasury Building, New York, with the Bible of St. John's Lodge of New York. Mr. Van Buren told of the laying of the corner stone of the capitol at Washington by Washington and his brethren under the auspices of the Masonic fraternity, and the part Masons have played in the upbuilding of our government. He urged upon all to become more and more identified with the effort for better government and better citizenship, and cautioned his hearers to take a keener interest in affairs of state.

At the conclusion of his address Mr. Van Buren was given a rising vote of thanks.

Alexander and the Knot.

Gordius, a peasant, being chosen king of Phrygia, dedicated his wagon to Jupiter and fastened the yoke to a beam with a knot that no one could untie. Alexander the Great was told that "whoever untied the knot would reign over the whole East." "Well then," said the conqueror, "it is thus I perform the task." And so saying he cut the knot in twain with his sword. This was in 333 B. C. A Gordian knot means to common use a great difficulty.

PORT EWEN.

Port Ewen, Feb. 25.—Although the weather was inclement Thursday night, the last night of the firemen's fair and bazaar held in Pythian Hall, there was a large attendance and the evening was very pleasantly spent. The Port Ewen firemen have a great deal to be thankful for as the people of the place and vicinity were in attendance and a great many helped both in a social way and financially. Surely this body of gentlemen ought to be congratulated for the way and manner in which the fair was conducted from start to finish. The chairmen of the different committees and their assistants were faithful to their posts and in fact everything seemed to work in harmony all the way through. Surely the general committee of the fair and the subcommittees are worthy of great praise by the way and manner in which everything pertaining to the fair was conducted. As this was the second annual fair and was so well patronized we hope the members will be so encouraged that this may be looked forward to for another year.

Pageants.

In the pageant of the arts and sciences the local historian does not figure brightly. He is tolerated only as a poor relation of the mighty scholars who chronicle the deeds of parliaments and armies, for it seems clear that since the whole is greater than the part he who writes of one small section cannot be as great as one who writes of nations and the world.—Dixon Ryan Fox.

BASKETBALL AT THE HIGH SCHOOL

Local Midgets Beat Tivoli Varsity and Seniors Trim Hudson—Junior Girls Beat Seniors.

The Tivoli High School Varsity and the Hudson High School team traveled to Kingston High School and both teams lost by decisive scores. The K. H. S. Midgets defeated the Tivoli Varsity 38 to 14; the K. H. S. Varsity won over the Hudson Varsity by the score of 23 to 15.

The Midget-Tivoli game was a close one for the duration of the first quarter only, when the up-river boys lost a little ground and continued to do so for the rest of the game. The Tivoli boys seemed bewildered by the strange court and by reason of the iron girders which criss-cross the ceiling many of their attempted shots were of no effect.

Quick, a lithe, athletic fellow, saved the Tivoli boys from what could be termed a whitewash, and the total number of points that he rolled into the baskets was 10. His rapid recovery of the ball at critical times was commendable. Eberhardt, the captain, and Diehl, each scored one field basket, but this was only one of the minor things that they did, for the manner which they used for guarding their opponents was all to the good. As guards, Lasher and Feldhaus were right there but they did not have enough experience to keep the Kingston runts from their final tally. The Tivoli lads lacked pass work and a correct defensive system.

"Stumpy" Stumpf and Ken Hasbrouck vied with each other in scoring for the Midgets, but no superiority was shown on either side and the final judgment gave them each 14 points. Clinton Dederick was next in scoring with 7 points. Scheffel, Brown and Maroney copped the guarding prize and as a result the honors must be evenly divided.

Varsity-Hudson Game.

Taken all in all the outcome of the Varsity-Hudson was a revelation of the most pleasing variety. The game of yesterday was the first that a Boys' Varsity from Kingston High School has defeated a Hudson Varsity team.

Rowland, Corregan and Bolt made the most points for the local lads, and the playing of each is at present the topic of discussion among basketball fans. Vogt, Schmidt and Anderson followed entirely aggressive methods of playing and to follow them with the eyes as they scampered about the floor was well nigh impossible.

Coach Atkins of the Hudson squad was continually shifting his players from their positions in order to work up a combination that the K. H. S. boys would be unable to stop, but his efforts only seemed to accelerate the team a bit and then it would get slower than ever. Mr. Atkins was in hopes that he would not have to use many of his first string men in the local game as he hoped to save them for the night's game with Ellenville High School.

Slomlnsky, Atwood and Ershler kept the crowd on edge more than any of the other visitors as they seemed to possess an inexhaustible supply of pep. Meyers and Jarmonski who he kept juggling about did not seem to get a chance to really show what they could really do, for they were no sooner warmed up than they took the bench again.

KINGSTON NOW HAS THE LOWEST TAXIMETER RATE IN THE UNITED STATES

MODERN TAXIMETERS

Have just been installed upon our new "BLACK and WHITE" Taxicabs.

The old "Flat Rate" of 75 cts. a trip—plus "Waiting Time" of $2.00 an hour—Is Now REDUCED ABOUT 40 PER CENT (Trip Average) by our NEW TAXIMETER rates following:

30 cts. for the first 2-3 of a mile.
(either 1 or 2 passengers.)
10 cts. for each additional 1-3 of a mile.
10 cts. additional for each 5 minutes "Waiting" time.
25 cts. for each additional passenger OVER TWO.

The Taximeter "flag" is "dropped" and "Waiting Time" starts only after you are fully notified, by the Driver, that our Cab is at your door awaiting you.

At the end of your trip, a printed ticket, SHOWING THE EXACT METER CHARGE, will be taken out of the meter and handed you by the Driver. You will pay only the Total Amount shown thereon. The meter is in view of the passenger constantly while riding in the Cab. Always demand the Ticket from the Driver.

The "Short Distance" rider will not pay for the "Long Distance" rider hereafter. Instead of paying 75 cts. for "Short Distances," you will only pay 30 cts. for the first 2-3 of a mile and 10 cts. for each additional 1-3 mile plus "Waiting Time" for either one or two passengers.

All can afford to ride now and only pay for the exact distance travelled—plus "Waiting Time" (if any.)

Look for our "Black and White" Cabs equipped with Taximeters.
